INDUCEMENTS ARE BEING OFFERED
BY THE DEMOCRATIC COUNCILMEN.*Proposition Worth $1,000 Made to Republican Councilman-elect to Break Caucus Pledge and Come Over.*OLD STRAWN BOND THE BAIT*Also Making Futile Efforts to Win Over Honest John Hetzel of the West Side—No Democratic Caucus Was Held Last Evening.

The Democratic members of the Town Council who have been in control of the organization of that body the past year are up in the air. The prompt and straightforward action of the members who met at the home of Councilman John F. Koser, Tuesday evening and in caucus pledged themselves to stand together in organizing the new Council has offered them to strenuous and rather questionable methods. Inducements are now being offered. One councilman after another has been to call on several members of last Tuesday's caucus in futile efforts to get them to break their pledge and come over to the minority. No less than three persons representing the old organization dropped in on Honest John T. Hetzel at his West Side place of business this morning. Of course they got but one answer. He told the old organization representatives that his mind was made up on the organization of the new Council. He is a Republican, elected by the Republicans of the West Side and he intends to help them and the two Democrats from the Second Ward in organizing Council on March 7. Mr. Hetzel has been a resident of Connellsville and New Haven for many years and in all these years his word has been as good as his bond. His callers this morning, after their interviews, were convinced that when John T. Hetzel enters into an agreement he sticks. However, it did not prevent them from circulating the report that Mr. Hetzel only went to the caucus held Monday evening to find out what the Republican plan was and that he signed the caucus pledge without any intention of sticking to it.

Another member of the Republican caucus was also approached last night and this morning. Marcus Marietta, Democratic member from the Fourth Ward and William McCormick, Democratic member from the Third Ward, both called on this Councilman-elect and stated that if he would come over with them and help organize the new Council they would see that he would not have to pay his share, about $1,000, of the bond of former Tax Collector Watson Brown, settlement of whose borough duplicate is still pending in Council. The new member of Council who was thus approached this morning corroborated the report that Councilman McCormick and Marcus Marietta had made this proposition to him. There is still about $1,000 due on the borough duplicate of Strawn and it is said it will be up to the burgess to settle. The members of the incoming Council to whom McCormick and Marietta talked just laughed at their promises, but in no uncertain manner told them they had come to the wrong man.

A unique proposition was also made to a member of the new Council by one of the present organization members. This old member owed the new member a bill of about $60. He calmly informed the new member that he would pay him this debt if he would desert the Republican caucus agreement. The new member said he would take chances on collecting his bill and stick by his caucus pledge.

Despite the announcement of the official Organ yesterday that a caucus of the Democratic members would be held last evening it didn't materialize. At least W. A. Bishop, the new Democratic member from the Fifth Ward, and by the way a man whose record in Council is a good one, stated this morning that if a caucus was held by the Democrats last night he was not invited. Mr. Bishop said he has not seen any of the old organization members of Council since the election.

Another story the old Democratic members are circulating is that Frank Friel and Tom Brennan, Democratic members from the Second Ward, have been taken into their fold and would be in line with the old organization on March 7. This story is too ridiculous for denial. The attitude of Councilmen Friel and Brennan toward the Democrats in control of Council at present has been very distinctly defined in recent years.

Parents Visit
Public Schools;
Patrons' Day

Yesterday marked the first of a series of three days set apart by W. S. Deffenbaugh, superintendent of schools, for the observance of parents' day in the public schools. In order to avoid an over crowded condition in the schools Prof. Deffenbaugh issued invitations for three days. Invitations for yesterday were sent out to all parents whose names commenced with either of the eight letters of the alphabet commencing with A and including G. Today all parents whose names commenced with either of the letters of the second eight letters of the alphabet are visiting the different rooms. Tomorrow will mark the close of the series and a record breaking attendance is expected on that day.

Yesterday many parents and friends of the school acknowledged their invitations by paying a visit to the different rooms. The regular lessons were carried out so as to give the parents an idea of the work which is being done by the children. Display work of the pupils was exhibited in the different rooms and was carefully inspected by the visitors.

The number of visitors in the schools were as follows: High School, 20; Fourth Ward, 106; Third Ward, 110; Second Ward, 80; South Side, 137; West Side, 69, making a total of 559.

State Police
Are On Duty
In Philadelphia

PHILADELPHIA, Feb. 24.—The arrival of Capt. John C. Groves and 200 men of the State Constabulary early today, caused great excitement throughout the city, as many thought this would start hostilities again.

The State men mounted are doing picket duty in the Kensington and Germantown districts, and are aided by 1,500 policemen distributed throughout the strike district.

Street cars are being run on a fair schedule. Men and boys this morning barricaded the tracks at Fifty-fifth and Parkside with huge piles of stones and boxes. Several heavily charged torpedoes were also placed on the street car rails and as a result of the explosion of the torpedoes, when the cars passed over them, windows were blown out of the cars.

The police dispersed the crowds, who, at imminent risk of being wounded by the explosion of the torpedoes, assembled to see the torpedoes explode.

When the State constabulary arrived excitement went over the city, and it was thought that hostilities would be resumed. The grim faces of the slim, weather beaten veterans, mounted and with dangerous looking arms handy, caused a second thought before attacking them.

The street car company officials and the leaders of the striking carmen both declare that they will win. The company asserts that it will resume normal car service as soon as the police will order. C. O. Pratt, the strike leader, declared "The fight is on, and the only question now is how long it will take to convince the company that they can't win."

SCOTSDALE, Feb. 24.—Blanche, a little daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Elmer Hough, well known people living near Wesley Chapel, was the victim of a serious and painful accident while out coasting near her home on Saturday. The little girl, like all country children this winter, was enjoying the fine coasting and in coming down a hill, her sled became unmanageable, leaving the track and striking a tree, and catching one of her little fingers between the sled and tree, so crushed the member that amputation was necessary. Drs. L. T. Gilbert and C. W. McKee performed the operation, and the little one is getting along well.

A GREAT FRICK MEET TOMORROW.

Series of Pictures of Mine Interiors Will Be Shown

IN SCOTSDALE OPERA HOUSE

Photographers Have Been Working for Months Collecting Views Illustrating the Most Modern Methods and Safest Mining Practice.

SCOTSDALE, Feb. 24.—In line with the campaign of education which the H. C. Frick Coke Company, the largest and most famed producers of coke in the world, have inaugurated to increase the safety of mining and to bring their men to a higher degree of efficiency in all lines, there will be a unique meeting held here in the Geyer Opera House tomorrow afternoon for employees of the company.

For several months past Photographer Harry J. Springer and Oliver Frick, his assistant, have been traveling over all the region in which the Frick company has operations and visiting the mines have made the largest collection of photographic views illustrating the interior of mines that has ever been made. It is stated, for one concern. These views, which illustrate every phase of improved mining, have been reproduced by the photographic medium and by transparent slides to be used with lanterns, and these views will be placed on exhibition tomorrow afternoon.

Thomas N. Dawson, Assistant Chief Engineer of the Frick company, has had the plan in charge and with the pictures has assembled a lecture, which will be delivered. The idea is to spread among the men a knowledge of all mines, to incite an interest in other mines than those in which they work, to stimulate their spirit of investigation, and to give them all information about the working of safety devices and the care of human life concerned in mining and coke manufacture.

The lessening of fatal and non-fatal accidents is the prime aim of these lectures and safety devices of every nature will be shown and their operation fully explained. The Frick company is inaugurating a great system of education among their people and that their men are interested is indicated by the numerous ones who attend all the meetings held.

Mr. Dawson is one of the Frick experts who journeyed abroad last year for the purpose of an exhaustive study of the conditions in the mines of foreign countries. That our American mines are conducted under better conditions than those of foreign countries was the verdict returned by the experts.

From the meeting tomorrow other meetings will go out to the various mines in the future, so that all the men will have the ideas fully explained to them.

Tip Top Mine
Shut down
By Water

OWENSDALE, Feb. 25.—Surface water in great quantity which has been flowing from the surrounding hills and valleys into the workings of the Tip Top mine of the H. C. Frick Coke Company, above here on the Mt. Pleasant branch of the B. & O. railroad, caused the mines to be closed down entirely yesterday.

The inflow of water into the mines was so great that coal mining operations could not be pursued. The entire mining force with some recruits from other places were turned into the mines to bail water, to open water courses, and to haul water out. The flooding of the mines is in no way incidental to any defective water courses, as these are all maintained in good shape, and kept clear, but the flooding has assumed untoward conditions. In law the inflow would be looked upon as an act of Providence, a flood not to be expected under any regular conditions.

Night and day the forces will work to get the mine cleared of the water, and to put it in shape for successful operation again. The cold weather had no effect upon stopping the flow as it seemed that the water came in more thickly from the frozen ground, than it did during warmer weather.

Forty ovens are in operation at this plant and these will be allowed to burn on as it is thought the mine will soon be in good shape again.

BALTIMORE, Feb. 24.—President Willard, of the Baltimore & Ohio Railroad Company, last night declared that there was nothing in the situation from a railroad company standpoint, that left a strike as the only alternative, should the trainmen conclude not to accept the counter proposition of the company.

"We have endeavored not to act arbitrarily, conferred as to what the men proposed, and explained to them the reason which governed our conclusion, and if on further consideration, the men are still not satisfied, rather than that there should be any interruption of business or inconvenience to the public, we are willing that the matter should be arbitrated, as provided for under the Erdman act, and we will accept as final whatever decision such arbitrators will agree upon."

MERCURY FLIRTS WITH ZERO WEATHER

It Goes Down to 10 Above at 7 O'Clock and Got Lower Than That During the Night.

Non-zero weather visited the coke region during the night when the mercury began a toboggan down the tube and came to a dead halt within striking distance of the big "O" which registers the basis for estimating how cold or hot it is.

According to the West Penn thermometer, which is more or less accurate, it was 18 degrees at 8 A. M. Out in Connellsville township this mark was beaten to a frazzle, according to Constable Painter Crossland. At 7 o'clock Painter says his thermometer registered 10 degrees, the mark reported by the West Penn crew which turned out at 5 A. M.

Regardless of trivial disputes over a degree or two, it was decidedly frigid during the night. Yesterday morning 22 was the mark, with 24 recorded last evening.

Before Justice of the Peace W. P. Clark last evening Bernard Stillwagon was arraigned on a charge of assault and battery preferred by J. William Ross, colored. Ross is nursing a fractured jaw as a result of the melee on Monday night.

Stillwagon says he warned Ross off several times but the negro insisted upon hitting him. According to the story told by witnesses, Stillwagon knocked Ross down once, but he persisted in keeping up the argument. Stillwagon then cut loose with a swift right to the jaw which did the business. Attorney R. S. Matthews defended Stillwagon while Attorney F. D. Munson appeared for Ross. The testimony was conflicting, but Squire Clark decided that as Ross was carrying around a badly battered physiognomy, the case ought to go to court. The defendant was held.

SCIENCE PREVENTS BALANCE.

The Fatal Germ and Its Remedy Now Facts of Science.

It is the rarest thing in the world for a man to be necessarily bald. No man whose hair is not dead at the roots, need be bald if he will use Newb's Herpicide, the new scalp antiseptic. Herpicide destroys the germ that cuts the hair off at the roots; and cleans the scalp of dandruff and leaves it in a perfectly healthy condition. Mr. Munnett, in the Maryland Block, Butte, Mont., was entirely bald. In less than a month Herpicide had removed the enemies of hair growth, and nature did its work by covering his head with thick hair in ten long, and in six weeks he had a normal, suit of hair. Sold by leading druggists. Send 10c in stamps for sample to The Herpicide Co., Detroit, Mich.

NO REBATE COMING

To Prisoners Who Apply Personally at the Lockup.

There is no rebate for a prisoner who comes to City Hall to be locked up as J. Dixon McElhenny of South Uniontown discovered this morning. He had been locked up last night and was arrested by Officer Francis. He spent most of the night testing his vocal chords and kept the other prisoners awake.

Burgess Evans fined McElhenny $5 with the alternative of 72 hours. The prisoner decided to lay out the sentence.

License Remonstrance From Windber; Somerset Needs Better Water Supply.

Special to The Courier.

SOMERSET, Feb. 24.—Another remonstrance against liquor license was filed today, in which 125 residents of Windber protest against increasing the number of licenses already in that town. The remonstrance sets forth that there are sufficient hotels in Windber at the present time, and that there are no additional additional applications for new retail licenses as well as one distiller's application and one application for wholesale license. The remonstrance also alleges that additional licenses will work injury to the people of Windber, and especially to the wholesale house, which, it is alleged, will solicit orders in private houses, thereby increasing the consumption of intoxicants. The remonstrance also avers that the distillery for which Norman Schelling and Thomas Lech are applying will manufacture a cheap grade of liquor to be sold direct to the consumer. The petition concludes with a request that Judge Koozer will not increase the number of licenses in Windber.

Somerset's Water Supply.

At a recent meeting of the local borough Council that body had under discussion the question of the local water supply, and finally determined to engage the services of an engineer to calculate the cost of constructing several adjuncts to the local water supply system, among which will be an additional reservoir having a capacity of 500,000 gallons, a concrete reservoir tank holding 30,000 gallons, a new well to be drilled some distance from the present wells, a new pump and additional pipe lines. Estimates will also be made on the cost of installing meters throughout the town, and bids will be received, within a few weeks. An additional issue of bonds will be made to cover the cost of these proposed innovations.

Shameful Way Uniontown Was Handed Wallop

It was really shameful the way the Connellsville duckpin experts handed a job to the Uniontown boys last night. After being dined, although not wine, in the best of style, it was really unkind of the boys from here. Unfortunately, the exigencies of the situation demanded that the honor of the cake region's only center be defended and two previous defeats at the hands of Uniontown made the boys from here wild for gore. They got it.

Three straight games were annexed to the Connellsville string. The scores were close, but there was margin enough when the total pins were flung up. Good was the only Uniontown man who cut any ice at all. He attracted attention by rolling the highest individual game with 121. Aside from that the Uniontown boys were a minor quantity. In fact they rolled a good bit like the team up there plays basketball. Down was the bright and shining star of the evening, rolling 376 in his three games. Nobody else on either side could touch him. Captain Warren Wright of the Tigers was next, although he hasn't been doing many stunts in the league lately. 324, who was the star for Uniontown a week or so ago, was not in form and only rolled ordinary games. All the Connellsville players piled up good scores.

The games rolled on the Temple at boys here a week or so ago determined where the third set of the series would be played. Uniontown won then so last night the Connellsville boys went to the County Seat. Under the agreement they had supper coming to them, and got a good one. Although the Uniontown boys didn't play much duckpin they set up a fine feed. Then the Brunswick alleys were leased and the game was on. Here is what happened.

BUFANO INVESTIGATES.

Potash Death on Behalf of the Italian Consul at Pittsburgh.

Posquale Bufano of Connellsville on Monday made an investigation of the death of Angelo Potash at the county jail some weeks ago as agent for the Italian Consul at Pittsburgh. Bufano had an interview with the County Commissioners and jail officials. In a statement given out yesterday Bufano among other things, says:

"After I and what I thought a good and careful search, going over all the occurrences of the year, unfortunately Angelo Potash, from the time he entered the hospital, I came to the conclusion that his case was one of those unfortunate instances that, legally, no one could be blamed for."

"The warden told all that he could be hiring someone to take care of the sick man, by paying in cash to purchase milk and other food besides the regular prison fare. Potash was no prisoner. The warden called in some-

The Changeable Weather is Responsible for Colds and Pneumonia

The thing worth knowing about pneumonia is that it is a cold that has attacked the lining of the lungs. Another fact worth knowing is that pneumonia attacks only those whose systems lack fighting power to drive off the germ—a good many persons who look strong and robust lack this fighting power.

It is at the first sign of the cold you take Father John's Medicine, you not only cure the cold, but nourish and strengthen the whole system.

Then the little health microbes which exist in your body gain vitality and force to overcome the visiting disease germ, whether of pneumonia, grip or any other ailment.

Constabulary Are Put Into

Morning.

CRISIS IN STRIKE DRAWS NEAR

Three Hundred Mounted Men, Armed With Carbines, Will Aid Police Force in Quelling Riots in the Turbulent City of Brotherly Love.

Philadelphia, Feb. 24.—The clean cut, square-jawed fighting men of the Pennsylvania constabulary are patrolling the streets of Philadelphia this morning. They came, 300 strong, under Captain Jack Groomer to stamp out civil war in this city.

Mayor Reyburn and Henry Clay, director of the public safety, called for Jack Groomer and his men because their own police force was limp and worthless in the face of the murdering, burning and clubbing that has caused in four days the death of four persons, millions of dollars of loss to the Rapid Transit company and the general business of the city, injuring hundreds of peaceful citizens and brought about a condition little short of anarchy.

The constabularies are depended upon to break the backbone of the strikers, and they were projected on the firing line the first thing this morning.

Backed by the carbines of these rough riders, the Rapid Transit company will attempt to run 1,200 cars, re-instituting service in the districts where violence has been most prevalent, and where loyal employees have been injured by the scores.

Troopers Placed in Turbulent Sections.

The city police were assigned to work on board these cars, two men to a car, and the men of Jack Groomer's command were posted where they can rip up trouble the minute the first brick goes whizzing through the air.

The rout of humiliation of the constabularies was an affair that Philadelphia does not care to stand for more than once. It will be a sorry rough work who attempts to grab a button of the full gray uniform of the constabularies to take home as a souvenir.

A crisis is approaching rapidly. The showdown may come tomorrow in the game that is being played as to which of the street car company is to be permitted to run its cars or whether the Amalgamated union is to win the strike.

The Amalgamated Union of Street Railway employees has been warned by Leader Pratt, the only man of brains among the leaders, that it is in the most desperate position in its history. It has to make itself or be completely smashed in the present fight.

Political Leaders Leave City.

The Republican boss, Jim McMichael and Billy Vero, allied to Philadelphia at the first grumblings of trouble, Senator Penrose remains in Washington uttering pleasant platitudes. There is no primary election which the strikers may win, as they did last June, as a bludgeon with which to hammer the traction company into a compromise. In short, Pratt understands, as does about everybody else in Philadelphia, that it has been framed up for the company to win.

Consequently the coming of the veteran fighters under Groomer means that Pratt and his followers will have to battle or quit, one of the two.

Pratt says that it will be a general strike; that his men will never submit to being corralled and cuffed by the state police and that the constitutional rights of poorable citizens are being invaded. The authorities are saying nothing, but the best information is that if the state constabulary finds the job too much for their nerve and experience—an outcome which nobody expects—Governor Stuart will be requested to send 10,000 militiamen into Philadelphia, and that, if necessary, a soldier with a loaded rifle will stand behind the motorman of every car. It is known that the national guard are ready at an hour's notice to enter for this city. The governor has discussed plans already with Mayor Reyburn and Clay, the police chief.

Constabulary Will Shoot.

When Groomer's four companies reached here they were detailed to the sections of the city where the company has suffered most loss in cars and men. There will be no hesitation on the part of the state police to crush rioting in the best way that offers. If mobs fall to disperse on order the constabularies will shoot.

The leaders, many of them in the northeast and northwest districts of the city at least, unruly laborers of foreign birth, have been a prime cause of trouble since this strike started. They walk into a riot for the love of devilry.

One of the worst riots was at the Baldwin locomotive works at Broad and Spring Garden streets. That plant has been the retreat for four days of hundreds of men who fought the police from cover and bombarded cars with bolts and scrap iron.

A crowd of 400 employees of the Baldwin plant marched to Thirtieth and Spring Garden streets and blocked a northbound car. The motorman saw he was in for it, but he stuck to his controller. A shower of bricks and stones crashed into the car, knocking the motorman down and injuring the police guards.

A dozen men sprang on the front platform, grabbed the motorman and the policemen, dragged them to the street and roughed them through the crowd. The policemen swung their clubs, but they had no elbow room. They were pounded and slapped and kicked and their uniforms were in rags. Finally one of the policemen managed to get his pistol free, and he let a shot fly into the thick of the crowd. The bullet downed a man named William McIntire, going into the right leg. McIntire was arrested and taken to the Hahnemann hospital.

Up came an automobile truck with twenty cops, and they had their guns out ready for business. They pointed the guns straight at the Baldwin crowd and threatened to shoot if the mob didn't retreat. The Baldwin workmen backed away and took refuge in the locomotive works.

Hardly had the streets been cleared when bolts and pig iron began to drop from the windows of the plant. A chunk of iron smashed a policeman to the street. Police Captain Austin, in charge of the reserves, ordered them to fire at the windows from which the workmen had been throwing bolts. Bullets crashed through the windows of the Baldwin plant and scattered on the brick walls. The fusillade kept up until the whistling blow and the men were forced to return to work.

Six Years For Strike Rioter.

Elwood Carr, who led an attack on a motorman at Kensington avenue and Cambria street and kicked the man in the face while he lay on the ground, got a six-year sentence. John Kline and Ellis Atkins, convicted on similar charges, were put away for two years.

Last night Pratt and his colleagues, J. J. Murphy, had a falling out over the matter of calling a general strike. Murphy has said for two days that a general strike was coming, and that practically all the trades unions in Philadelphia were itching to take part in the general mix-up. Pratt denied that a general strike order had been issued by the Central labor union and said that "the order is being held in abeyance." Murphy repudiated Pratt's statement.

Penrose Asked to Intervene.

Washington, Feb. 24.—Senator Boies Penrose has been asked to become mediator between the employees and employers in the Philadelphia car strike by a delegation of labor leaders from Philadelphia.

The senator said that the representatives of the labor unions who talked with him had asked him to look into the situation and had complained of the treatment they had received from the police. The senator has not given the delegation an answer. He has had several talks with them over the long distant telephone today and explained that the delegation had not fully outlined to him what steps they desired him to take in the matter. The senator is not quite clear whether the labor leaders would have him sit as an arbitrator of the troubles or merely attempt to get the consent of the employers for an arbitration of differences.

PRESIDENT FOR BOND ISSUES.

Proper to Let Posterity Share
Burden of Big Projects.

TAFT SPEAKS AT NEWARK, N. J.

Wisdom of Providing For Panama Canal and Waterways Improvements by Issuance of Bonds Must Be Admitted, He Says.

Newark, N. J., Feb. 24.—This city has not had a chance to get intimately acquainted with a president of the United States for forty years, since President Grant dropped in to attend the opening of the industrial exhibition, so when President Taft motored in, Newark just naturally rose on its hind legs and yelled. The president had only one opportunity to address the crowd, but he made the most of it and his hearers in turn cheered just as if they all had heard what the president had said.

Taft's speech at the banquet of the board of trade in part follows: "I should like to direct your attention to the question of government expenses and government revenues and the possible economies and what expenditures are essential at whatever burden of taxation."

Tariff Bill Will Reduce Deficit.

"I am glad to say that the operation of the new tariff bill has been so much more productive of income that the deficit for the current year is likely to be considerably reduced. In addition however, to the ordinary deficit we have to add the Panama canal expenditure for immediate provision of $38,000,000; or what was estimated to be a total deficit of $72,000,000 is now reduced considerably by the better rates under the present tariff bill."

"Everyone must admit the wisdom of providing for the payment of the canal expenditures by bonds. Not only is the application of such a principle just and right in the case of an enterprise like the Panama canal, but it seems to me wise and appropriate to adopt it with reference to other projects which commend themselves to congress and the economical completion of which requires the issuing of bonds. I refer to those definite projects that have been agreed upon in respect to the improvement of our inland waterways."

Jobs Should Be Done at Once.

"I would not begin the expenditure of any money on any project the wisdom of which had not been fully vindicated by experts and the cost of which had not been fully ascertained by the most experienced engineers; but having determined to put through the improvement, it ought not to be done by fits and starts, but it ought to be done as one job, the provision for its completion ought to be made by the issuing of bonds, unless the current revenues afford a sufficient amount to complete it within an economical time."

President Taft said that his statement had peculiar application to the river and harbor bill recently passed in the house by which the Ohio river improvement, costing $62,000,000, is provided for.

Cherub Devine

By SEWELL FORD

Copyright, 1909, by Mitchell Kennerley

Here is a fascinating latter day romance, written in the vein and style that have won fame for Sewell Ford. "Cherub Devine" is an inspiration in his refreshing outlook on life and people, and after a megalomaniac Wall Street career and a season of recreation among the effervescent ladies of the stage he meets the charming Countess Vecchi. This sweet young American girl, victim of the exorbitant international marriage system, resolves that it is her duty to reform the Cherub, and the outcome provides a narrative seldom equaled in its fanciful humor, illuminating character delineation and tender sentiment.

CHAPTER I.

THOSE who doubt that fate now and then indulges in irony should have observed the manner in which Howington Acres came into the possession of "Cherub" Devine.

Bulkins, the real estate agent who made the sale, attributes the whole credit of the transaction to his own shrewdness. But, then, Bulkins is one of those persons who would cheerfully call upon the entire universe to prove that he (Bulkins) was favored above all other men in that respect. Does the sun shine? Bulkins knew it would and for his profit. There comes a storm Bulkins appropriates it, wrings a percentage therefrom and winks confidently at the solar system whose operations are conducted for his especial and particular benefit.

"I can sell anything, anywhere," this was Bulkins' philosophy, his religion, his declaration of faith in himself.

And of course Bulkins knew the habits and ways of Cherub Devine. Every one knew them. Any one—the man in the street, the clerk behind the counter, the very newsboy at the curb—could tell you all about Cherub, give you his entire history, from the time he started his career in office boy for a Chicago stockbroker until he evolved into the many millioned speculator whose audacious methods were at that moment stirring things up in Wall street. Each and every one could have told you exactly the kind of man he was and missed the mark widely, for such men are not so easily estimated.

Perhaps it was this, visible in his wide set blue eyes, with the flashes of light behind; perhaps it was only the pink chubbiness of his cleanly shaven face, which earned him the name of Cherub, a designation applied impartially by port messenger boys, irreverent brokers and staid heads of great corporations. He had been christened otherwise, of course, and possibly Cherub was inappropriate when you consider all that he was. Others were followed by boys carrying kit bags.

"Hello, Cherub! They got after you today, eh? Planning how to get even, are you?"

Mr. Devine showed no resentment. "Maybe I was," said he.

Bulkins snorted out a mirthless laugh. "Good! He 'em, my boy! That's what I'd do. When they think they've got me beat worst I lob up and go at 'em hardest. But, say, you ought to take a rest once in a while. Does a man good. You ought!"

"Oh, I say, Cherub," dropping his tone, "I've got just the thing you ought to have—a country place."

"Yes!" Mr. Devine acknowledged the joke by flicking him an arch of right eye on the window ledge.

"You bet!" Bulkins was smothering Cherub's coat sleeve. "It's Howington Acres—up on the sound—right edged suburban property and going dirt cheap on foreclosure. You know about the Howingtons: swell family, but some all to smash financially. Now there's twenty acres of park along the water, also little forty room cottage."

"Only forty?"

"With stable, lodge house, garden, etc. and the like. It's fully furnished and goes as it stands, even to the servants if you want them. Just the place for a family, man like you!"

And Bulkins sneered a fresh appreciation of his own humor, winking maliciously at an astounded broker's clerk who happened to be passing. Mr. Devine seemed to have missed the joke.

"How much?" he asked, his gaze still fixed on the stone steps opposite.

"Receivers would take $400,000, but it's worth double. That's as sure as I'm standing here. I tell you, Cherub, that property."

"I'll take it," said the Cherub. "But I'll take it at sixty. What do you want to bid the bargain—ten thousand? Fifteen? Well, call it fifteen. And before that under lip of Bulkins' had affirmed he was holding Cherub's check in his hands.

Observed Bulkins afterward when he had mentally added his commission to his bank account and recovered from his surprise: "Now, some men would have been six months turning over a property like that, but me, I nulled it on the first sucker I meet, though what in thunder Devine wants of a place like Howington Acres is more 'n I can see!"

Apparently Cherub had no immediate use for it since he showed three weeks to elapse without referring to the transaction, except to toss the deed over to a clerk and tell him to have it recorded. He seemed to forget all about it until one Friday afternoon when he found himself with a "closing" Saturday, a Sunday and an ensuing Monday holiday on his hands.

"Better come with me for a run into the Berkshires, Cherub, and help me try out my new machine," urged Williston, one of the "Chicago crowd," whose hobby was buying another and more expensive touring car every month or so.

"Thanks, but I guess I'm about due out at my place on the sound."

"What! You don't mean to say you've set up a country establishment?" And Williston gave him an incredulous look.

"Didn't have to—bought it all standing. Haven't seen it yet. It's out—well, any, blunder if I know just where it is. Boy, ring up Bulkins, real estate."

Having summoned Bulkins to the other end of the wire, Mr. Devine proceeded to ask enlightenment.

"That you, Bulkins? Well, this is Devine. Say, what's the name of that place you sold me? It's Howington Acres? Oh, Howington! Good! And where is it? Yes, where's it? How

He put his thumb on it and waited. "Did you ring, sir?" asked a seaportful voice behind him.

Mr. Devine jumped and turned to see a solemn faced butler.

"Who else would ring if I didn't?" demanded the Cherub.

"No one, sir."

"Sure about that, are you?"

"Quite sure, sir."

"Well, I'm not. Some one just skipped out of this room as I came in. Who was it?"

"Likely one of the maids, sir."

"Do the maids have no run of the bookcase, eh? She was sitting here."

"Might have been the 'housekeeper, sir—Mrs. Timmins, sir."

"She's a reader, is she? Well, tell her not to be so skittish next time. It gives me the 'dicks."

"The man had retreated as silently and abruptly as he had come."

"Wonder if they're all that kind," commented the Cherub. "Guess I'll have to hang sleighbells on 'em if I want to dodge a case of nerves."

Dropping into the easy chair, he began reading the titles on the backs of the volumes before him. So all these books were his, were they? Well, that was odd. Some day he might want to do a little reading. He had always meant to, but—

Something white on the floor between the chair and the wall caught his eye. He stooped and picked up a handkerchief. It was a dainty affair, mostly lace, and there was an initial in the corner, an embroidered V with some sort of a little pointed crown above it.

"H-m-m," said the Cherub. "V can't stand for 'Timmins'."

Having made this subtle deduction, he pecked the handkerchief and started to look for the factotum who was caretaker and superintendent and whose wife was the housekeeper.

"Timmins," said Mr. Devine, "what kind of a name is that?"

"Beg pardon, sir, but—" Timmins caught himself abruptly. "Oh, you mean how many in help? Only five now, sir, outside of me and Mrs. Timmins."

"Five, eh—two are seven? Let's see the payroll, will you?"

Timmins produced an account book in which were entered names, dates and amounts. Mr. Devine glanced hastily through the list.

"None of 'em seem to have a V in their names," suggested the Cherub.

"A V, sir?" Timmins' blank look was wholly convincing.

"Maybe you never heard of any one whose name began with a V, Timmins?"

"Oh, yes, sir. There was the Vennables, sir, as used to visit here, and Volkenberg, who was one of the gardeners."

"That all?"

"There might be others, sir, if I could lay my tongue to it."

"Don't strain your memory, Timmins. It doesn't matter."

Yet when he had returned to the veranda to resume his contemplation of the vividly green lawn, over which the tree shadows were now lengthening, he could not rid himself of the notion that somewhere about this big house, of which he was trying to convince himself that he was the owner, was a person who had not thus far been accounted for. Moreover, the deep verandas.

"Show you through the house first, sir," suggested Timmins.

"Might as well."

Mr. Devine was lighting a black cigar. This accomplished, he followed Timmins into the darkened vista of hall and through the large rooms. As Bulkins had assured him, the place was fully furnished. There were chairs, tables, rugs, books, pictures, even freshly cut flowers in the vases.

"Upstairs now, sir?"

"Oh, I guess the upstairs 'I'll keep 'em have a look at the 'table'."

Inside of half an hour the Cherub was smoking lonesomely on the front veranda, trying to summon a sense of ownership which it seemed to him impossible that he could ever achieve.

Usually a man much given to silence, even among his intimates, Mr. Devine now felt that he wanted to talk. The stillness was oppressive. So this was what it was like to own a country place, was it?

"Fine thing—the country," assailed Mr. Devine. "I could spend just about a week here—and then die of it."

He walked into the library. As he did so he heard a muffled exclamation and caught a glimpse of a skirt whisking through a door. An easy chair pulled up before an open bookcase caught his eye.

"Hello! I wonder who that was?" He found a push button on the jamb.

He pressed it.

Many of the cases reported have been given up to die of the knife, doctor or treatment benefited them. Can you doubt what it may do for you?

person was a woman. Mr. Devine moved uneasily in his chair.

Mr. Devine indulged in a chuckle at his own expense when he found himself seated alone in the big dining room, a single plate laid at the big round table and the candlestick brightly suggesting the dim corners and the cavernous fireplace. It was with a sense of relief that he saw the butler emerge from the gloom.

"Let's see, what's your name?" he asked of this personage.

"Eppings, sir. Soup, sir?" Both reply and question were dismal, sepulchral in tone.

"Yes, I'll have some soup. Grand mother dead, is she?"

"Beg pardon, sir." Eppings paused, with his hand on the turquoise cover.

"Grandmother dead?" repeated Mr. Devine.

"She is, sir."

"Thought so. Mine is too. But cheer up. You'll get over it."

"Most extraordinary man, the new master," reported Eppings in the servants' quarters. "Thinks I'm mourning for my grandmother when, bless me, the old lady's dead and gone these twenty years."

male weakness and piles. She was beset by so many women needing treatment that she decided to furnish it to those who might call for it. She started with only a few dollars capital, and the remedy, possessing true and wonderful merit, produced wonderful results where doctors and other remedies failed. The demand grew so rapidly she was several times compelled to seek larger quarters. She now occupies one of the city's largest office buildings, and almost one hundred lady clerks and stenographers are required to assist in this great business.

Some time ago it was announced that she would give to women who suffered from female diseases another $10.00.00 worth of her medicine. She has fulfilled this promise, but as she is still receiving requests from thousands upon thousands of women from all parts of the world, who have not yet used

Nothing ghostly about that," remarked the Cherub. "Am I in a board-house or what?"

Finding a lawn seat, he swung it around, lighted a fresh cigar and leaned back to make a comfortable survey and reflect upon his discovery at leisure. Instead of one there were two persons for whom he could not account. Perhaps there were more—four, five, six, a dozen. Why not? Room was not lacking. True, he had been given to understand, both by Bulkins and by Timmins, that he had bought a house tenanted only by servants. But persons who read books in his library, dropped lace handkerchiefs and occupied rooms in the main portion of the house could not be servants.

The Cherub wondered and speculated and made wild guesses as to the identity of the persons in those upper rooms. Having no starting point, he drew a follow, he arrived nowhere.

"Give it up," he said. "Guess I'll go to bed."

Why he should rise at the unearthly hour of 6, however, he explained in quite a different way. He accused a few twittering sparrows of waking him. Perhaps, too, it was the sparrows which drove him out to make a circuit of the grounds. Quite incidentally he glanced up at the windows he had watched the night before. The closed shutters revealed nothing. Finding a bench under a tree, he sat down and began to wonder how long it would be before he might call for his breakfast without seeming unreasonable. He was aroused by a crunch-crunch of footsteps on the gravel. Some one was walking down one of the interesting paths.

During the brief instant that he stared he had a glimpse of a slender, big eyed young woman whose hair hung in a thick, dark braid over one shoulder. Across the hollow of her left arm was a sheaf of freshly cut flowers. In her right hand a pair of shears. And then she saw him.

"Oh!"

Down fell the shears. The shears clattered on the stones.

By the time he could scramble to his feet she had gathered up her flowers and the shears. She stood quite still, gazing him with apprehensive expectation.

"Oh?" said the Cherub.

"I-I said nothing," replied the young woman.

"But you squeaked, didn't you?"

SEYLER IS HELD

By Coroner's Jury For Death of Adams
Girl at Atlantic City.

Atlantic City, N. J., Feb. 24.—Police were forced to draw clubs to hold back the world crowd who almost stormed the hearing room of the city last night while a jury brought in a verdict which directly charged William Seyler with responsibility for the death of Jane Adams, whose frozen body was found in the surf on the morning of Feb. 13.

Immediately following the filing of the verdict and after a delay only long enough to allow Mrs. Adams, mother of the dead girl, to be supported from the room in a half fainting condition, William Seyler was brought from the cellroom of the jail under heavy guard and formally charged with the killing of the girl last seen alive with him on the end of the pier.

"I shall hold you for appearance before the next grand jury without bail," declared Coroner Southwain after former Coroner E. W. Gaakill, counsel for Seyler, had entered a formal plea of not guilty.

Seyler appeared dazed and only raised his eyes long enough to answer to his name when ordered to stand up.
Immediately after this Orvis Seyler, younger brother of the accused man, was brought into the room and held under $2000 bail as a witness to the case. No attempt was made to secure bail for the boy whose face beamed with lines of worry, but he will probably be taken to the county jail at Maryland to await the action of the next grand jury.

But the opening chapters of our new play, "The Boy in the Box," in the city.
